It is a fireplace in Louis XIV style, one of the most brilliant periods in French history, the “Golden age”. It combines elements of classicism and baroque styles. Clear proportionality and symmetry, the predominance of the horizontal over the vertical, distinct large-sized center and small side “risalits”, semi-circular arch, just proportions to the human, and classicism features are supplemented by baroque elements, namely, cartouche in the center, kit of the mantel, and effects of light and shade. It is what makes this fireplace unique.
